India was secular since the formation of the republic. The judgement established that there is separation of state and religion.

Secularism is a doctrine, involving a definite belief in the separation of school and church, and a legal separation of church and state. It is an overall philosophy and is based on the idea of separation of church and state. It is a core value of western democracies and is enshrined in the constitution of the United States.

Secularism is a philosophical argument with an antithetical world view to the idea that the existence of God is the basis of human existence. It is a belief that human existence is not predicated on the existence of a supernatural being.
